Basic Data (excerpted from primary sources):

This mine is not listed as a new mine in 1919, and it may have been in operation prior to that time (see Notes, below). The 1920 CMID indicates that this mine "was abandoned on my last inspection but a new drift was being driven." The 1921 CMID indicates that this mine "supplies coal for the electric light plant in the village of Hazen." The 1925 CMID indicates that this mine was condemned, and the last listing noted for the mine was in the 1926 CMID. The mine is not listed as closed or not operating, but it is likely that the mine ceased operations in about 1926.

Descriptive information pertaining to this mine is included in:

Notes:

The Reichenberg mine also is located at this Planning Unit and AML location. It should be noted that Leonard et al. (1925) indicate that the Hazen Coal Mine was located at T144N, R86W, Section 8, NW corner; the Reichenberg mine was located at T144N, R86W, Section 8, NW, NW, NW. The last listing noted for the Reichenberg mine was from 1917; the first listing noted for the Hazen mine was from 1919. Although no information was noted that definitely relates the two mines, it is possible that the Reichenberg mine became the Hazen mine or that both mines were operated at about the same location.

A mine operated by C.J. Dolan in about 1884 also may have been located at this Planning Unit and AML location.
